

WE NOMINATE

Richard Joseph Hughes, the third Chief Executive of New Jersey to reside in Morven and the ninth Democrat to hold the State's highest office over the past half-century, whose mastery of the art, or science, of persuasion has produced a noteworthy New Jersey "first": the first Presidential Convention in the State's history. The Democrats' choice of Atlantic City for 1961 represents, even in the eyes of Republican spokesmen, a "considerable achievement" for the 53-year old Hughes, who waged an all-out campaign against heavy odds to bring this major national event to New Jersey as a highlight of the Tercentenary Year.

Trenton and Princeton sources close to Hughes, a Democrat by deeply held conviction and a firm adherent of the two-party system with few avowed sympathies for political independents, were nowhere near as surprised by his "convention victory" as were the more dispassionate observers of the Fourth Estate. One source recalled his accomplishments as a lawyer and jurist, another his role in helping transform Mercer County from a Republican stronghold into what is now often termed a "Democratic citadel," and many his unanticipated but decisive triumph in 1961 when "he came from far behind" to whip James P. Mitchell.

Twenty-four hours after the selection of Atlantic City, Hughes, an individual of boundless energies and remarkable political instincts, was "stumping" for his highly controversial $750,000,000 bond issue, which is generating a shrill and ever-rising cacophony of protest on the part of Chambers of Commerce, other business organizations and many taxpayer groups. With commendable candor, he told his listeners that he is "running scared" on this issue and predicted that New Jersey within 5 to 7 years will have a sales or income tax regardless of whether or not the Trumpke referendum is approved in November.

A native of Florence, N. J., and an alumnus of St. Joseph's College (Philadelphia) and the New Jersey Law School (now part of Rutgers University), Hughes was admitted to the bar in 1932 and shortly thereafter plugged into the activities of the Young Democrats over which he was to preside on the State level. Defeated in 1938 in his first bid for elective office, Hughes served as an Assistant U.S. Attorney for New Jersey from 1939 until 1945 and in the latter year formed with Thom Lord the Trenton partnership, and alliance, that was ultimately to lead him to the State House and Lord to the Democratic State Chairmanship.

In 1948 Hughes, this state's first Roman Catholic Governor and today the head of a household of 10 children, turned his back on politics to accept appointment as a Mercer County judge. Five years later Republican Governor Alfred E. Driscoll advanced him to the State Superior Court and in 1957 he was named to the Appellate Division by Chief Justice Weintraub. His decade as a jurist included an arduous two-year stint as chairman of the Supreme Court's Committee on Juvenile and Domestic Relations Courts, an assignment capped by the issuance of a definitive, far-reaching study of the courts' handling of juvenile offenders.

For hugely enjoying, and taking to heart, the political counsel once offered by a Democratic President: "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen;" for understanding that a public official is confronted with the difficult twofold duty of reflecting the wishes of those who elected him and, then, seeking to lead the people in those things that have to be done; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

This Is PRINCETON

WHO'S HOT?

Everybody. "It's going to be a hot, sticky summer," said David Ludlum, warmly.

Princeton's man for all seasons lay the blame on over-ripe air coming north from the Gulf of Mexico. For a time, we were cooled by air coming down from Canada, but this northerly flow has been stopped by the pressure of that hot southern air, and every perspiring Princetonian knows the rest.

Along with the heat and the stickiness is the drought. Mr. Ludlum says that this April, May and June were the driest ever in Princeton and the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association agrees. The Association had expected (and wistfully hoped for) a June average rainfall of 3.87 inches. What it recorded was a thirsty .92, hardly enough to dampen the gauge.

Only four inches of rain fell during the entire three-month period. Here's the tally:

April	1.15
May	1.94
June	.92
	4.01

Water? Good. As TOWN TOPICS went to an early press this Fourth of July week, the water situation in Princeton

HOW DRY I AM: Where are the deep pools of yesteryear? Not in this stretch of Stony Brook during this hot stretch of summer. The dark streak is the narrow trickle of clear water that flows along the Stony Brook channel. On either side is stagnant water covered with algae, and beyond that, dry land. The view is south, toward the bridge on Rosedale Road.

seemed to be very good. Engineers for the Elizabethtown Water Company, owners of the Princeton Water Company, have been keeping a day-to-day check on the water supply. For a time, early last week, engineers thought Princeton could get by without sprinkling restrictions, but on Thursday, they sent to all water subscribers a request to suspend lawn and garden sprinkling for two days — that is, until last Saturday.

The notification, delivered by young "newshoys," did not reach every household by any means, although the water company says that the response was prompt and helpful. Princeton Township police helped on Thursday by dispatching a patrol car or two into parts of the Township, chiefly the northwestern section, asking residents to cut off the sprinklers.

"We have no water problems in Princeton at the moment," said an Elizabethtown spokesman. "Princeton's tanks are full, and although Saturday's thunderstorms skirted around Princeton, leaving only about an inch of water, we're not asking subscribers to cut back. Of course, this may change if there is a sudden drain on the supply."

The water company estimates that Princeton has been using about 5 million gallons a day, or approximately 40 percent more water than during the critical period in May, 1962.

Rain Didn't Help. The series of weekend storms, chiefly thunderstorms on Saturday afternoon, brought some temporary relief from the heat, but did little else in this immediate area. South, in Burlington County, which has been hard hit by drought, heavy rains flooded many roads and washed out utility poles, cutting off power for three hours.

Farmers in Burlington, and in Mercer, Somerset and Hunterdon Counties, are waiting for a reply from Washington to Governor Richard Hughes' request that the counties be declared disaster areas because of the drought. The request was made more than a week ago.

If it is granted, dairy farmers can then draw on the "disaster acres" that they set aside under the soil bank program, converting the permanent grasses and clover growing on these acres into hay for dairy cattle. In northern Mercer County, it is the dairy farmers of Hopewell Township who have been chiefly affected by the lack of rainfall, and who will benefit most from a "disaster area" declaration.

When rain does come, it will probably be, once again, in the form of thundershowers, according to Mr. Ludlum. The nice, drizzly, constant, soaking kind of rain farmers and water companies need will probably not begin until the hurricane season begins down south. Mr. Ludlum believes. Coastal storms working north from the Carolinas would be most helpful, but this pattern does not exist at present.

How Hot Is Hot? Just how hot have we been? Mr. Ludlum's high is 99.5, recorded last Thursday about 2:30 p.m. Stony Brook-Millstone recorded its high on that day, too, but at the Association's headquarters outside Hopewell, it was a cool 96. Here are Stony Brook's readings for the week:

	High	Low
Monday	89	60
Tuesday	92	62
Wednesday	95	60
Thursday	96	59
Friday	93	62
Saturday	82	69
Sunday	89	67

The reason Thursday didn't seem like a 99.5 day, of course, was the low relative humidity. Mr. Ludlum does not keep his.

Round-Up

Hot weather dodger Ben Schwartz, head of Ben's Auto Body Works, no Route 206 must have known about the intolerable oven that Princeton would become. He recently hustled by helicopter to Idlewild, grabbed a jet from there to Alberta, Canada, on his way to a vacation in Alaska. In Alberta he is visiting two of his sisters whom he had never seen before. He plans to get to Alaska by car along the Alcan highway, reputedly little more than a cinder-covered obstacle course through the wilderness. But at least he should be cool.

Last Friday, in the supposed cool, end, end of the evening, Borough pulled out a report of a highly unattractive aroma drifting around in the Spring and Vandeventer area. First thought it was coming from sewer. But street department checked it out and found a truck, broken down at the corner, full of meat scraps intended for a Keeney rendering plant. The combo of heat and meat did it.

General alarm fire last Friday at 11:25 p.m. when a garage-barn between Dickinson Street and College Road caught fire. Building, owned by Westminster Foundation, was used by kids as a clubhouse. Fire confined to furniture and car side of barn. No one hurt. Cigarette believed to have been the cause.

Last Sunday at 9 p.m. police got a call that a German Shepherd dog had been tied all day to a post in parking yard at corner of William and Charlton Streets. Police tried in approach, but dog showed vicious disapproval. SPCA official got dog, took it to animal shelter in Trenton. No collar or license on animal and police as yet unable to locate owner.

Adams, of the Visiting Nurse Association staff, instead of by Mrs. Norma Rouse, according to a revised announcement from the sponsors. Sessions at Princeton Hospital will begin on Monday at 7:30 p.m. and will be held each Monday evening through July 29.

In accordance with President Kennedy's suggestion that bells connote freedom, the Chamber of Commerce is asking all bells in Princeton to be rung Thursday at 2 p.m. Churches and schools are particularly requested to join, in commemoration of the Liberty Bell which rang on the first Independence Day.

And, as Mr. Ludlum points out, things cooled down at night, Thursday, the hottest day, faded into Thursday, the coolest night, with the mercury pulling up a blanket at 59 degrees. However, the past few nights have been warmed by that Gulf air, and Sunday night at Mr. Ludlum's, it never got below 71.

lower than Mr. Ludlum's, recorded in Princeton, which may be a commentary on the joys of rural living. But then, they are lower in winter, too.)

How Wet Is Wet? Getting back to rainfall for a moment, Stony Brook has dug from its files some interesting maximum-minimum rainfall figures for the three-month period just ended.

For April, the record monthly precipitation was a soaking 16 inches which fell during that month in 1915. The lowest April rainfall was .93 inches in 1867.

For May, the monthly record is 10.75 inches in 1894, and the record minimum is 3 inches in 1903.

For June, the maximum rainfall was recorded in 1867, when 9.19 inches fell, thereby easing that .93 drought recorded in April of the same year. Minimum rainfall for June was recorded during the dry spell of 1949, when the rainfall was .06.

Want to keep score on Mr. Ludlum's prediction for a hot, sticky summer? At the end of April, he said we would have a wet, cold May. Well, that "wet" part didn't quite make it to Princeton. But cold? There was frost on May 22-23. On this July Fourth, the only frost is on the outside of a mint julep.

TOPICS Of the Town

A SEWER FOR HILLSIDE

Ordinance Passed. A vexing problem which has harassed the Township for almost five years was apparently solved Monday night when Township Committee passed an amended ordinance to provide a sewer for the Hillside-Route 206 area.

The new sewer will serve 34 existing houses and business establishments, but its treatment plant has been designed to care for 100 — just in case. The ordinance appropriates $176,000 to pay for the sewer. One amendment provides for the assessment of all costs as local improvements, and the other relieves taxpayers from the burden of paying for what Committee member John O. Green referred to as "false starts."

By "false starts," Mr. Green means the original engineering studies that proposed a somewhat grandiose scheme which would have cost about half a million dollars. It was after Committee members saw these estimates that they decided upon the present plan, which offers to Hillside's embattled residents a much more modest, but quite as effective sewer system.

The ordinance includes $26,000 to cover engineering studies, and the amendment provides that the Township engineer, Frank Quinby, will work out the proportion of this amount that represents the "false start." The Township will bear that cost.

The Hillside Problem. Hillside's houses, some of them 30 years old, were built on top of almost impervious rock. Individual septic systems began to overflow a few years ago, polluting the wells to such an extent that householders, in many cases, had to import bottled water.

The problem of working out the most practicable sewerage system at the most practical cost has delayed construction of a sewer for many years. Now, it looks as though Montgomery Township may enter the scene. Montgomery joins Princeton Township in this area, and officials of the neighboring township have approached Princeton to ask whether the sewer might not be a regional one.

Monday night's ordinance leaves room to maneuver in case Montgomery decides to come in. If the treatment plant is built in Montgomery instead of on the property of Dr. Cornelia Jaynes, as now planned, or if Montgomery ties in so that its research zone can benefit, financial arrange-

Great Road to Stay Open

It looked for a time as though Pretty Brook Road commuters would have to drive a four-mile detour just to get into town, much less get to the railroad station. And householders all up and down The Great Road have been worried about the length of time it might take a fire truck to reach them, once the county closed The Great Road during construction of a new bridge above Mountain Avenue.

But everything has ended happily. The County has agreed to build a $6,000 bypass for all vehicles (private cars, school buses, fire trucks, etc.) and what is more, to pay $4,000 of the cost.

Township Committee agreed Monday night, with a sigh of relief, to pay the remaining $2,000. Construction is scheduled to start August 4 and continue to the middle of September.

ments could be worked out which would ease the burden on Princeton taxpayers, according to Committee.

In any case, Acting Mayor Maurice F. Healy Jr. pointed out, present negotiations with Montgomery will not delay construction of the sewer for Hillside residents. However, there will have to be another public hearing because of those two amendments. It will be held July 15. Meanwhile, Mr. Quinby, Committee member Carl C. Schafer Jr. and Administrator Joseph R. Nini will confer with Montgomery officials on a joint treatment plant, working from a plan of operations developed by Committee member William Wilson.

And Roads. Committee also acted in another sewer matter, passing on first reading an ordinance to build 1,800 feet of sewer extending the proposed Great Road sewer from the end of the line now being built by Stuart Country Day School, to a point on Stuart Road. The sewer must go in before The Great Road is realigned, probably sometime next year.

Another road realignment, this one somewhat heavier in time, was started on its way when Committee passed on first reading the ordinance providing $17,250 in supplemental funds for the realignment of lower Alexander Street. State funds are already in hand. Public hearing will be held on July 15. The realignment will remove troublesome "dog-legs" on Alexander Street.

And Traffic. Acting on a collection of traffic matters, Committee asked its attorney, Gordon Griffin, to draw up ordinances limiting parking on the east side of Witherspoon Street to two hours (parking on the west side is already forbidden) and prohibiting all-night parking (2 to 6 a.m.) on Witherspoon, Harris, Jefferson and Moore. The ordinances will be introduced July 15.

The two-hour parking proviso will chiefly affect the area next to the Medical Arts Building, where many cars are now parked all day. The all-night parking ban will, it is hoped, prevent Borough residents from using neighboring Township streets as all-night garages.

Committee also approved a reduction of the speed limit on Stockton Street between the Borough line and Stony Brook, from 50 to 45 miles an hour. The state has surveyed the stretch, and given its mandatory approval.

In response to a request from the mayor and council of Summit, Committee agreed to write legislators urging passage of a measure to give communities speed control over municipal streets; not county roads or state highways, but municipal thoroughfares like Edgerstonne Road and Grover Avenue.

"I Dissent." "If this law passes, everybody in town will be here every night with petitions to reduce the speed on streets," said Henry J. Frank, gloomily. Mr. Frank, of the Traffic Safety Committee, was the lone dissenter when that committee agreed to recommend support of the Summit request.

Committee member Green did agree that a better solution might be to amend the state law that defines a residential district, but he voted with the rest of committee to make the request of the legislature.

By a 3-1 vote, Mr. Schafer voting the "yes," Committee defeated its own ordinance prohibiting overnight parking on Township streets.

"We would like to eliminate overnight parking," commented Mr. Wilson, "but we can't do it and work an injustice on the people who are involved."

Committee also voted to go along, part way at least, with the state, and not erect any more signs that say "Children at play" and the like. These are frowned on by highway officials. The "part way" refers to the fact that Committee did not vote to remove the signs already in existence. These signs will simply not be replaced as they wither and die.

And finally, Committee created a Traffic Bureau in the Township police department, appointing Sgt. Anthony J. Nini to the new post of Traffic Officer. He will attend Brown University for two weeks to train for his new responsibilities.

NO HELP NEEDED

All Fireworks Program. Princeton Post 76, American Legion, has completed arrangements for its annual July 4th fireworks display in Palmer Stadium. The traditional show will begin shortly after 9 o'clock, and Post officials have emphasized the fact that they can "do it themselves."

Specifically, parents are asked to make sure that children do not bring fireworks of any kind to Palmer Stadium. Not only are they illegal when set off by individuals but in the past their use has meant injury to innocent bystanders.

The Post reports that "sparklers have been especially troublesome in the past as some persons thoughtlessly toss them about in the crowd. They can be extremely dangerous both from the lighted end and the wire end." Cooperation from everyone, Legion officials point out, will assure enjoyment of the occasion for all.

The Princeton Community Band will give a concert, starting at 7 Thursday night. Post 76 will present the colors and the fireworks display will start as soon after 9 as darkness permits.

Admission is $1, with children under 12 admitted free when accompanied by an adult. The rain date is Friday.

MAN HELD FOR FORGERY

On Complaint of Mother, George W. Marshall, Jr., 34, 227½ John Street, was given a preliminary hearing Monday night before Magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr., on nine separate charges of forgery. In all nine instances he was charged with forging checks which he signed with his mother's name, made out to himself and then cashed by putting his own endorsement on them.

Mrs. Ethel Marshall, his mother, appeared as complainant in the case and identified her son's handwriting on a number of the checks, which totaled $116. She testified that, after she had been afflicted with glaucoma about eight years ago, her daughter had made out all her checks for her and that she herself had then added the correct signature.

Mrs. Marshall stated that the checks in question had not been made out by her daughter and had not been signed by herself. She testified that her son had admitted forging the first three of the nine checks, but she said that she had no knowledge of the other six until she received overdraft notices from her bank.

On the basis of the evidence presented, Magistrate Tams ordered that Marshall be held for action by the Mercer

Will It Bring Rain?

A sizzling rocket,
Hot and bright,
Will fire the sky
On Thursday night.

Sizzling rockets are symbolic of sizzling days in this summer of 1963 as the heat begins to make inroads on previous records for prolonged hot and dry spells. The current situation is reported upon fully in "This Is Princeton."

It will turn perceptibly cooler by Wednesday night, the current report claims, but colder these days is in the 80s rather than the 90s. Showers are a weekend possibility, steady rain seems almost out of the question.

County Grand Jury. Because of his inability to raise the $1000 bail, Marshall was committed to the county jail.

In another criminal case to come before the court, Michael Sweeney, 18, of 181 North Harrison Street, and Frederick Petrone, 18, of 8 Humbert Street pled guilty as charged under the Borough's disorderly persons act. Specifically, they were charged with malicious mischief in the breaking of the show window and electrical fixtures in the store of Reuben F. Johnson, 14 Tulane Street.

Magistrate Tams levied fines of $25 and $10 costs against both of the defendants. He also ordered them to surrender their conditional driver's licenses to the police and placed them on probation for 90 days with the proviso that neither of them operate a motor vehicle during the period.

Hearings on eight traffic violations were also held by Magistrate Tams. Howard J. Ramberger, 17, Mount Lucas Road, pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving on June 10 at speeds reported to be between 60-65 miles an hour on Mercer Street. He was fined $45 and $5 court costs and had his license revoked for a year.

Ramberger had previously been convicted in Township court by Magistrate James S. Hill on charges arising from the same incident after his car allegedly hit speeds up to 110 miles an hour in the Township during his efforts to elude police. Magistrate Hill's sentence of three years revocation of license and 10 days in the county jail is understood to be in the process of being appealed by the youth. At the time of his apprehension, Ramberger had been a licensed driver for less than five months, police reported.

Others convicted of motor vehicle violations included

STABLE, MORE STABLE, MOST STABLE: In addition to declensions, school teachers may have to contend with a periodic mental examination in the future. Gayle Snook (left) and Donna Yantz both agree it would be a good idea, primarily for the protection of the students. (Staff Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: It has been proposed that school teachers be required to undergo periodical mental examinations. Do you think they should?

Where asked: Princeton Shopping Center

Miss Gayle Snook, Plainsboro, dental assistant. Yes, I think they definitely should because the children they teach have emotional problems of their own. And if the teachers themselves aren't capable of coping with their own problems, then they shouldn't be allowed to teach.

Miss Donna Yantz, Belle Meade accounting department, Princeton University Press. I really think it is a good idea because when the teacher has an emotional problem it can reflect on the entire class and this certainly should be avoided if possible. It's not the fault of the teacher that this could happen. Look at some of the kids they have to put up with.

Thomas A. Moore, 19 Green Street, taxi driver. Yes, I think they should, very much so. The reaction of the teacher plays an important part on the pupils. If a teacher has an emotional problem it could possibly evoke similar responses and reactions from the students.

Mrs. Tim Jensen 218-A Eisenhower Street, former teacher. I do think so, because some teachers as they get older tend to get very set in their ways. Some of the very old tend to get senile and they might be harmful to the children, very definitely. We have our lungs examined every year for TB, we should have our minds examined, too.

Mrs. Helen Rosso, 422 Ewing Street, housewife. I would say "yes" for the sake of both pupil and teacher. Sometimes the strain gets too much and they don't realize it. It might well be that a teacher could be mentally exhausted and not realize it. I think it would be a good preventive measure.

Bruce Conger, 492 Riverside Drive, graduate student, English. No, I think that is an absurd idea. It sounds deliberately argumentative. I can think of no instances in the past where a teacher could be criticized on that point. I think any serious emotional adjustment problem would be evident to school officials.

Mrs. Thomas Stix, 16 Deer Path, housewife. I think it is a fairly good idea. Very many people have emotional problems and teachers are no exceptions. Plus, they do have a great deal of influence on the children.

Mrs. Dean W. Meyerson, Van Dyke Road, housewife. I think the idea isn't bad but I would question the reliability of the examination. How valid is it?

Eric Moench, Trenton, clerk at Princeton A & P. No I don't see that. It is hard enough to get teachers now, I feel most teachers would resent this. They have enough problems;

let's not make it any harder for them. I feel if they have been able to get through college and obtain a degree they ought to be qualified to teach.

Mrs. Gilbert Chase, 392 Mount Lucas Road, housewife. Yes, I think it would be a good idea, especially for a teacher who has been teaching 20-25 years. It could be that a teacher could get senile.

Mrs. Eugene Randsupp, Linden Lane, housewife. I don't see any harm in requiring that teachers be reviewed mentally. Certainly, it would have to be done in the most diplomatic manner, but, in thinking it over, I feel it is very advisable. In my opinion, the entire education system needs reviewing.

Joseph Feuerborn, Carmel, Calif., commercial artist. No, I don't know of any other occupation where this is required. I see no need for it. I mean if it is that obvious, then the school can take steps to correct it.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Guinn, 223 Nassau Street, housewife. No, I'm new here and I don't know what the teaching requirements are but in Arlington, Virginia, I know a teacher was not required to have a degree in education. I think this should be the first step in considering the necessary qualifications for teaching children. That from time to time a teacher would be examined to detect any possible mental problem is, to me, absurd. I'm sure a sharp supervisor could detect any problems of this nature.

Mrs. Diane McCalt, Lawrenceville Road, housewife. Absolutely not. I don't think it would prove much anyway. I think we should have more esteem for teachers, that we should feel they are of high enough caliber that they wouldn't be unbalanced in the first place.

Mrs. Alfred G. Green, new-comer from Chicago, housewife. No, I don't know what the point would be. What would it show? If a person is seriously emotionally ill, it is readily apparent. I think there would be many teachers who would be opposed to it. What you mean is an emotional examination rather than a mental one.

Mrs. George Barrie, 280 Nassau Street, housewife. I think it would be very good but it would depend if the public were ready for it. It would have to be made very, very clear why and on whose authority the tests were being done. Even then, I think you would have a tough time getting teachers to agree to it. I think it would be a good thing to consider for the future.

News Of The THEATRES

ENCORE!
Opera Group Nets $800. Invitations to sing before audiences in Trenton and Philadelphia, and a net take of $800 from a benefit performance have sent members of the Princeton Opera Association into a crescendo of enthusiasm.
The organization is less than a year old, having been incorporated early last fall. On June 22, members held a dinner-opera-dance benefit for about 300 guests a benefit which brought in a gross of $1,000 (it was, in fact, oversubscribed) and a net of more than $800 after expenses had been met.

Early in August — probably the first and second Sundays — singers from the Opera Association will appear in Cadwalader and Johnson Parks in Trenton under the sponsorship of the city of Trenton. They will present the second act of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro" and the entire "Cavalleria Rusticana."
Trenton has also asked the Opera Association to produce two full operas during the 1963-64 season, probably "La Traviata" on November 15 and
"Tosca" on April 15.

We Open in Philadelphia.
Officials in Philadelphia read about the Opera Association in the Philadelphia "Inquirer" and sent the group an invitation to produce one full opera in the Trade and Convention Center's 900-seat auditorium on a Sunday afternoon during the coming season. The Association has not yet decided which opera to produce.

In addition, the city of New Brunswick has asked whether the Association would be able to send a production of two to New Brunswick next summer.

In the best tradition of op-eragging, the June 22 dinner-opera-benefit was black tie, which is about as close to white tie as Princeton is likely to get. Eighteen members of a Hostess Committee each invited about half a dozen couples to private dinner parties. Subscription price $10 a couple.
(One hostess had 72 guests.)

After dinner, all the guests gathered at the home of Mr.

and Mrs. W. Bryce Thompson to hear outdoor opera, done with scenery, costumes and full voice. Singers, drawn from the Association's performing group, presented the entire second act of "The Marriage of Figaro," the entire "Cavalleria Rusticana" (except the choruses) and one scene from "La Forza del Destino."

The director was Igor Chi-chagov, artistic director and conductor for the Princeton Opera Association, and a member of the staff of the Baltimore Civic Opera. Mr. Chi-chagov was also in charge of staging for the benefit.

Following the opera presentations, guests were invited to dance. Hostesses who planned the affair were Mrs. John J.
Burns, chairman; Mrs. Thompson, co-chairman; Mrs. Alfred

The Longest Day (now playing) is a searing, three-hour battle picture, directed by Darryl F. Zanuck and written for the screen by Cornelius Ryan, author of the best seller on which it is based. The D-Day fighting on the beaches of Normandie is shown in panoramic spectacles and in many brief encounters between individuals and small groups.

The film ranges over the whole battle area, from headquarters in England, across to Nazi supreme command posts, to the battle frenzy and to the cellars of the French resistance workers. The actors speak in English, French and German, adding to the authenticity of the pictures as the scenes shift.

Among the players are John Wayne, injured commander of a first-wave paratroop battalion; Richard Burton as an RAF pilot; Red Buttons, a paratrooper who hangs suspended from church steeple while his comrades are slaughtered around him; Henry Fonda as Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt; Eddie Albert as a fighting colonel in the murderous Omaha Beach action; Robert Mitchum, who leads the final breakthrough; Peter Lawford as a British commander; Paul Anka, Richard Beymer, Fabian,

PLAYHOUSE and PRINCE

Come Blow Your Horn (Playhouse, through Friday; Prince, through Saturday) is a light, fast-paced and sophisticated comedy of the New York scene.
It was adapted from the successful Broadway play.

Frank Sinatra stars as the playboy son of a snail, Jewish manufacturer of artificial fruit.
His high old times get complicated when his kid brother leaves home, planning to live it up, too.

Lee J. Cobb and Molly Picon are delightful as the parents; Barbara Rush appears as a sexy, vacant-minded neighbor.
Newcomer Tony Bill is perfect as the younger brother.

One of the funniest scenes stars Miss Picon, alone in her son's plush apartment, trying to answer phones and take messages at top speed. Comment: spry and very funny.

IT'S NEW To Us

WHAT NEXT?

Wall-to-Wall Kitchen. At the Home Furnishing Shop on Witherspoon Street these lazy summer afternoons, they've begun to talk to the customers about wall-to-wall carpeting for the kitchen.

For the KITCHEN? Why, they will ask you ingenuously, not? When we expressed some disbelief, recalling the way imperious young gentlemen can toss milk down from high chairs and let-me-help guests can drop a platter of fried chicken, Mr. Sam Bahadurian, who is one of the owners of Home Furnishing, said, "Come and see my kitchen."

And so we did. It's eerie, walking into a kitchen which has been carpeted like a livingroom, wall to wall. Or, in the case of a kitchen, stove to refrigerator. You have the uneasy feeling that the sink has somehow strayed into the livingroom and that Salvador Dali is just around the corner. But it is handsome, no doubt about it. Mr. Bahadurian's kitchen has been carpeted in a deep royal blue with a small grey tweedy fleck, and it certainly looked clean and tidy the day we walked in, unannounced.

Mrs. Bahadurian decided to carpet her kitchen after she had done the livingroom and she continued the same carpeting right across the threshold — no special texture, color or treatment is involved in the kitchen carpet.

It is an acrilan rug, and Mr. Bahadurian recommends acrilan, first because it is inexpensive (around $10 a square yard), second because it will take hard, pounding wear without collapsing under the strain.

Wall-to-wall carpeting for the kitchen is custom-fitted, of course, and cut to a very tight fit so that it doesn't have to be permanently fastened down, like standard wall-to-wall installations. This means that you can take it up when it needs cleaning.

Now, what about this cleaning bit? Well, Mr. B says that a kitchen rug isn't going to get much more spillage than a livingroom rug (cocktails spilled, salted nuts dropped and trod upon); a den rug (TV dinners upended, potato chips massaged into the warp) or a dining room rug (butter lobbed to the floor, that glass of milk spilled).

If you drop a milk bottle on a standard kitchen floor, it will shatter. If you drop it on a rug it will not break, says Mrs. Bahadurian. Grease can be cleaned off with a carbon tetrachloride solution.

Mr. Bahadurian is particularly pleased with the acoustical difference between a vinyl floor and a rug. In a family with briskly mobile children, the patter of little feet is absorbed and lost in the pile of the rug. And to that, we say "hooray!"

(Incidentally, the Bahadurians will show you their carpeted kitchen anytime you care to make an appointment.)

LIVIN' IS EASY

Cook, Sew, Grow. We came home from the University Store the other day with a $12.50 copy of Jim Beard's Outdoor Cookbook and a 59-cent pound of hamburger. We could have brought home the Better Homes and Gardens Barbecue Book for only $2.95 and a couple of filets mignon, but each palate has its own taste.

Anyhow, the point of all this is — why not explore a hobby during vacation? You may decide that it's great fun to vary the family menu with some outdoor cooking, or you may decide to stay inside where it's cool and make salmon mousse, avocado mold salad or dalgairis from the Beat-the-Heat chapter in "The Blender Cookbook." (We like molded cucumber mousse.)

While you're waiting for that mousse to set, you might pick up Erica Wilson's best-selling "Crewel Embroidery" and take a stitch in time. The illustrations in this book are insidiously splendid, and will lead you into thinking that you, too, can create embroidery like that. Good luck!

Should you wish to expand, there is the Good Housekeeping Complete Book of Needlecraft, and if you're really going all-out this summer, there is the Singer Dressmaking Course in 8 Easy Lessons and the Singer Sewing Book.

Stepping for a moment into the garden, we find University Store customers holding George W. D. Symond's

Just Add Water

It's an instant pool, and that's all you do, just add water.

Considering the dormant state of Princeton's water supply, we may be showing a lamentable lack of public spirit in suggesting the purchase of an instant pool, but there is always the future to consider.

The pool is "instant" because you don't have to inflate it. A hard, rigid plastic rim, like hard rubber, goes around the body of the pool and holds the water in. You unfold it when you want to fill it, fold it back up again when it's empty. In between, you put it in a carrying case. Two sizes: five feet across by 12 inches deep, six feet across by 15.

The store is Tiger Auto on Witherspoon Street.

"Shrub Identification Book" in one hand and a rare sprig of ilex in the other. With its 3,500 illustrations, this book is a truly magnificent specialized encyclopedia, a worthy companion to Mr. Symond's book on trees. The illustrations are sharply graphic, showing close-ups of stems, branches and bark in full botanical detail.

Rose growers will choose the deceptively small "Encyclopedia of Roses" ($6) by H. Edland, secretary of the National Rose Society of Great Britain. "Anyone Can Grow Roses" (yeah?) has been written by Cynthia Westcott, the plant pathologist who actually practices as a "plant doctor." (A rose has been named after her. It's called "Blue Shield.")

Both these books have been illustrated with color photographs to show how your roses ought to look, and how Mr. Edland's and Miss Westcott's really do look.

"The Driftwood Book" will show you how to arrange that fascinating piece you brought back from the shore, and it will tell you, in advance, where to find the best driftwood pieces. Arrangement suggestions are both Japanese and domestic in style.

KOOK OUT

Or Swim? Keeping drinks cold and food hot is not so difficult after a shopping tour of Tiger Auto on Witherspoon Street. We found a styrofoam ice-hucket for only 45 cents, and capacious styrofoam ice-chests for only a couple of dollars.

Big Thermos ice-chests, like the leyhot have been made of a sturdy, insulated plastic, and the matching jug is light enough in weight to be carried by your smallest guest.

Kook-Out makes a regal, $37.95 wheeled grill with electric spit, pull-out shelves, glass.

trapping, 2: that, with the approved ratio of about 1000 attackers to one defender and with the firm promise of help on the way, it is almost impossible not to generate enough pulse-thumping whoop-de-do to leave an audience vibrating happily.

"55 Days" is the latest version of the gambit, this time the free hand account of the Boxer Rebellion in 1900. Eleven foreign legations to the Manchu Imperial Court find it urgently advisable to barricade themselves within a three-quarter mile square enclave and stave off the attacks of Chinese fanatics, called Boxers, whose rude intrusions are motivated by a desire to clothe for keeps the hated "foreign devils."

That the current screen version is at considerable variance with history is of small consequence. After all, in 1900 the defenders could not avail themselves of the services of Ben Hur Heston who, for this one, considerably traded in his used chariot for a commission in the U.S. Marines.

Under Heston's leadership, the besieged group pulls itself together, bounces back multiple attacks, and successfully exploits every Chinese weakness. In the Boxers' armor until, after a most uncomfortable time, the survivors are sprung by relief troops sent in by director Nicholas Ray.

The movie doesn't pretend to make much sense as a logical retelling of the event. And it isn't helped by the fact that, since the film was shot in Spain, local peasantry was employed to impersonate the Chinese mob. Nor by the use of a "French priest" who speaks with a clear Killarney brogue.

Ava Gardner plays Ava Gardner to the hilt (rather than the Russian baroness she is supposed to be). And David Niven as the veddy British Minister keeps the required stiff upper mustache throughout but is obviously plagued by pretty many lines.

A key to the general level of dialogue is the line by Marlene Heston when, after a day of unbelievably savage battle and bloodshed, he meets a child in the badly battered island of resistance. "I guess you know there's been some fighting," he says. "But no fair Peking," he might have added.

Yet, in spite of the fairly lamentable script-writing and the severe strain imposed on both director and make-up department to get actors to behave and look like something they can't, there are swirling action, noise and commotion in full measure. Also on the agenda are brass bands, pomp and circumstances, while the defenders continue to cool the coolies with single-minded concentration.

There are also adequate romance and sentiment, and enough gore to stock a good-sized blood bank. If you're looking for a way to spend two and a half hours getting your fill of vicarious excitement and at the same time slaying "healthfully" air-conditioned, "55 Days at Peking" could well be your dish of tea.

"JENNY KISSED ME"

Comedy at Bucks Playhouse. Jean Kerr's first comedy, "Jenny Kissed Me," written in 1948 before her "Mary, Mary" and "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" era, will be on view at the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope starting next Monday. It will play through July 20 each evening at 8:30 with matinees at 2 Wednesdays and Saturdays.

In "Jenny Kissed Me," Mrs. Kerr tells about a teen-age girl who comes to live in the household of a priest. There are clashes between different generations, and frictions between varying points of view. It is a comedy suitable for the whole family.

James Daly will be starred in the Michael Ellis production "The role is quite different from the part Mr. Daly played last summer in Mr. Ellis' "The Advocate," and also a departure from his role two seasons ago in Tennessee Williams' "Period of Adjustment."

Appearing opposite Mr. Daly will be Sharon Langhlin in the title role, Catherine Craig, and Mr. Daly's entire family including his wife, Hope Newell, and Glen and Tyne, his two daughters. Geraldine Fleming will direct.

SONGSTERS COMING

To Music Circus. The Clancy Brothers and Tommy Makem will sing a program of Irish songs Sunday afternoon at 4 at the Music Circus, Lambertville. Authentic songs, familiar and less well known, are included in their repertoire.

The Llmelitters will make an appearance Monday night at 8:30, replacing the regular jazz performance. Stan Kenton will provide the music Monday, July 15.

The final performance of "South Pacific" will be given Sunday night, to be followed by "The Student Prince" opening Tuesday for a one-week engagement.

Beginning this weekend, the Music Circus will offer an antique fair and flea market to run from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. each weekend through August 31. Americana, prints, jewelry, firearms and may other items will be offered from wagons.

Each Saturday, a percentage of the proceeds from the fair will benefit an organization, such as a rescue squad or fire department.

"Unconstitutional"

New Jersey statutes requiring the reading of five Bible verses each day in public schools, and allowing the recitation of the Lord's Prayer are unconstitutional, in the opinion of Attorney General Arthur J.
Sills.

Mr. Sills issued his formal opinion at the request of Frederick M. Raubinger, commissioner of education,
who is expected to pass along the ruling to school districts. The interpretation follows the United States Supreme Court decision of June 17.

Neither Borough nor Township school offices has received official word from Commissioner Raubinger, probably because of vacation schedules.

MAN SWIMMING DROWNS

In Millstone River. A man identified as Lucious W.
Meeks, 30, drowned in the Millstone River near Rocky Hill on Sunday while swimming with friends.

An airman stationed at Me-Guire Air Force Base, he disappeared in the river about 4:15 p.m., and his friends were unable to locate him. His body was recovered about two hours later by members of the Princeton and Rocky Hill rescue squads.

CARS MEET AT BRIDGE

Driver Signs Complaint. Two minutes before midnight Friday, two cars collided at the Princeton - Kingston Bridge when one driver swerved into the opposite lane. No one was injured.

Ordinarily, it would have been just another addition to a long list of accidents that have occurred at the bridge.
But this one contained a few twists.

The driver who swerved to cause the accident, Mrs. Alma E. Gunderson, 23, of Jacksonville Florida, was on her way to Griggstown to meet her in-laws whom she had never seen.
A bride of one week, she told Township police that she was unfamiliar with the area. En route, her driver's license, ear registration, and Florida tags had been stolen in Washington, D.C.

The police filed no charges against Mrs. Gunderson. However, the driver of the second car, Fred H. Buddenbaum, 69, Cooper Mine Road, signed a reckless driving complaint against Mrs. Gunderson. Her husband, Arnold Gunderson, aboard the carrier Roosevelt, is expected to arrive in New Jersey this week.

THREE FROM THE PRINCETON AREA WERE "SIGNERS:" Richard Stockton and John Witherspoon of Princeton and John Hart of Hopewell were among the five New Jersey delegates present when the Declaration of Independence was signed July 4, 1776. The picture is from a painting by John Trumbull depicting the occasion.

Topics Of The Town

FIVE WHO SIGNED

Abraham Clark, John Hart, Francis Hopkinson, Richard Stockton and John Witherspoon — those are five particular Jerseymen to remember on July 4 — for they were the quintet whose bold signature officially tied New Jersey to "the course of human events."

Only a revolution could have linked five men of such dissimilar backgrounds.

Two of them, Stockton and Hopkinson, were well-to-do lawyers, although Hopkinson gained considerably more fame for his satires and music than for his skill before the bar. Clark, in contrast, had a lasting mistrust of lawyers. Farmer Hart and college president Witherspoon might never have spoken under ordinary circumstances.

Their paths came together on June 22, 1776, when the Provincial Congress of New Jersey elected them as delegates to the Continental Congress convened in Philadelphia to discuss a possible declaration of independence.

New Jersey Was Lagging. John Adams and others needed assurance that New Jersey truly desired independence. Late in 1775 the New Jersey Legislature had advised its delegates in the Congress to vote against any motion for independence. Three representatives of Congress sped to New Jersey and caused the legislature to "drop their design."

On the eve of independence, Abraham Clark wrote that anyone who still questioned New Jersey sentiments about freedom could best "judge of them by the members they have elected" to discuss the break with England.

Judge the five, therefore, by their records up to June 22, 1776.

Abraham Clark of Elizabethtown was a surveyor, and to help settle land disputes he studied law although he probably never was admitted to the bar. He became known as "The Poor Man's Counselor" and persistently fought for simplification of court proceedings and privileges for lawyers.

Clark has been likened to 17th century "levelers", who sought to lessen the disparity between top and bottom in society. He spoke persistently for separation from England.

Hart Well Respected. John Hart of Hopewell received little formal schooling, but he became one of the colony's most prosperous farmers. As "the man in his community," he went to the state assembly and there earned accolades as a supporter of popular rights.

Farmer Hart opposed the stamp Act of 1765, led the opposition against housing royal troops in New Jersey, and throughout early 1776 stoutly opposed the regime of Royal Governor William Franklin.

Stockton Proved a Leader. Richard Stockton of Princeton proved that the American Revolution was not a poor man's war. Wealthy lawyer Stockton at first shunned politics and his first brush with revolt seemed to come when in 1766 he journeyed to Scotland to urge John Witherspoon to accept the presidency of the College of New Jersey.

Stockton sought initially to persuade Great Britain to give America self-government, without their "renouncing allegiance to the crown." The alternative, he warned, would be "obstinate, awful and tremendous war." Somewhat sadly, he cast his lot for complete independence.

The fifth of the signers was John Witherspoon, spirited and outspoken Presbyterian minister who became president of the College of New Jersey in 1763. Witherspoon excited controversy in Scotland for his unrelenting insistence that people should have the right to choose their own minister.

Witherspoon gave the College of New Jersey a new lease on life and encouraged a rebellious spirit on campus. Although he at one time disapproved of ministers engaging in politics, Witherspoon solidified sentiment for a Declaration of Independence when he spoke in Philadelphia on July 2.

The Presbyterian college president declared that the country was "not only ripe for the measure but in danger of rotting for want of it."

Some admirers claim Witherspoon's dramatic words carried the day for independence — probably an extravagant claim — but he knitted the signers together by July 4, 1776.

Actually, none of them could earn the honor of being called "signer" on July 4. That honor waited until August 2, when the five affixed their names, along with other members of Congress, to a bright, new parchment called "The Declaration of Independence."

Person To Person

A friend remarked about the upcoming Fourth of July and he reviewed some unusual thinking about the time spread between the discovery of the new world in 1492, and our present year. He pointed out that after Columbus proved there was a continent here, it was another 120 years before there was much activity by the Europeans in North America. Using 1620 (when the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock) as a starting date for a new era, there then began a period of 156 years of colonial life in the Americas before the 13 English colonies divorced themselves from England, and gave birth to the United States on July 4th, 1776, and that started the new era in which we now find ourselves. Our friend said that seldom are we aware that we ourselves are making history, which some later historian must record. He said, "If anyone wants briefly to sum up why we attained the most wonderful nation in the world, he might well simply quote the last paragraph of the United States Declaration of Independence. 'And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honour.'" A HOMEMAKER IS ON THE JOB: Mrs. Magdalen Edly is one of the devoted members of the Princeton Homemaker Service, moving in to fill the gap that opens in a family when mother is sick. In this particular case, Mrs. Edly cared for the children while the mother recuperated from a broken leg. The father had just started a new job and was unable to take time off to help at home. Who are the women who serve as Homemakers and what do they do? Read about them in story, this page.

"I'M A HOMEMAKER"

And Proud of It. "I stayed with that family for seven weeks, and when I left, the children called me 'Grandma.' The grey-haired woman smiled in recollection. "They came to see me after I'd left, and I went back there later, just on short assignments, you know."

A homemaker like this one finds many children who say "grandma," because the basic function of the woman who belongs to the Princeton Community Homemaker Service is to play the role that Grandmas used to play a generation ago: the role of stepping in when the young folks need help.

Although it is a part of the Princeton United Community Fund, the Homemaker service was originally established by Kiwanis, and this organization still supports a "case fund," which provides help for families who could not otherwise afford it. Eight families received help from the Kiwanis fund last year.

I'm Here to Help. What does a Homemaker do? She comes in to help when there is illness in a family. In the old days, grandmothers used to do this or maiden aunts or widowed sisters, or the neighbor who lived next door.

Today, grandmother has a job a thousand miles away and can't take time off to help her daughter-in-law, and the next door neighbor has four children of her own and no help and one of them is coming down with chickenpox.

And so, the need for a Homemaker. About 20 of these dedicated women are registered with the Princeton agency. They range in age from 30 to 70 and the 70-year-olds are just as vigorous as the younger ones.

The comfy, cuddly stereotype of a peppermint candy grandma does not fit these brisk, clear women. They know that, for a sick mother upstairs in bed, the most comforting thought is the knowledge that someone efficient has taken over. The children will be fed wholesomely and regularly and comforted when they cry. The husband will come home to a hot dinner. The dishes will be done.

A Morale Booster. She likes people, she likes children and she likes to help, this Homemaker. But she does not allow herself to become involved in the crisis that is facing "her" family at the moment, and for this reason, she is often able to bring a lift and a spirit to the distracted family that is almost as welcome as her housework.

"She picked up the house and she picked us up, too," said one family, writing in thanks to the Homemaker Service.

"So long as it's helping people, I want to do it," said an earnest young Homemaker, a woman still in her 30's. "I live 10 miles out of Princeton, but I drive in here whenever they want me."

A Homemaker on the job does routine light housework, like changing beds, dusting, keeping kitchen and bathroom clean, but no heavy work like the regular family laundry. She does, however, do light laundry, especially for the

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO
TOWN TOPICS, July 3, 1958: The Fourth of July was to be celebrated in Princeton by a doubleheader between teams in the Midget and Junior Baseball leagues and by the quarter-century-old annual pyrotechnic display in Palmer Stadium. The Stadium, second to none as a location for such an event, is sometimes the scene of more fireworks on that one evening than it produces as a football arena during an entire fall season.

Mayor Raymond F. Malt announced that the "Public Housing Administration has extended the time allowed for Princeton to pick up its allocation of up to 50 units of public housing. Discussions of various plans are continuing." It took until mid-June 1963, just before allocation expiration date, for approval "in general" of a North Harrison Street site for 30 of the units. A multiplicity of discussions, ideas and locations used up the intervening five years.

"Question of the Week" in the July 3, 1958, issue was: "Should the Board of Education prohibit high school students from driving to and from school and school events?" The consensus of replies was "No, but..."

TEN YEARS AGO
TOWN TOPICS, July 2, 1958: Agreement on terms of the generous gift of 17 acres of the former Marquand estate to the Borough had just been reached, and final transfer of the title to the present Marquand Park was imminent. The gift from the three daughters of the late Professor and Mrs. Allan Marquand was being made subject only to the request that the land be preserved as a park and recreation area.

Summer theatre in Princeton was jamming Murray Theatre. The University Players, working with a repertoire of dramas by writers ranging from Jean Cocteau to Noel Coward, were scoring repeated successes "in production, acting, direction and technical aspects, notably the lighting, sound effects and set design." The absence of any such program in 1963 leaves a big hole in Princeton's summertime diversions.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO
TOWN TOPICS, July 1, 1948: Princeton unhappily became the home of a few million 17-year locusts. Along with the other pleasures and problems of that Summer 1948, they seemed here to stay.

An eminent scientist had this to say of the noisy invaders: "If the locusts' singing irritates you, don't spray them with DDT. The spray only makes them happy and happy locusts only sing louder."

"Melody Time" was the latest Disney film at the Playhouse. TOWN TOPICS' critic was only mildly entertained by it, reporting that it "has enough music, humor and expert artistry to overcome the weaknesses of a raucous sound track, cuteness that becomes stere or corn, no continuity, stylized draftsmanship," "flawed," the Garden's offering, was abruptly dismissed as "never even average."

The town's severe housing shortage in 1948 was reflected in a TOWN TOPICS classified in which a young widow asked for an apartment large enough so that she and her 11-month-old son might live together under the same roof.

Topics Of The Town

children. She cooks and serves meals and packs lunches and prepares, in advance, the dinner that will be eaten when she has left for the day.

In addition, she is often a teacher. A young mother, scarcely more than a bride, and just as ignorant about housekeeping as she is about bathing the baby, can learn much from a Homemaker.

Show Me? One new mother called the Director's office and asked, timidly, "Do you think the Homemaker would show me how to do things right?"

She most certainly would. One Homemaker, reminiscing about a big, chaotic household to which she had brought order and a sense for housekeeping, said "I'd like to go back in five years and see if they're still doing the things I showed them."

"You have to keep house, of course," comments one Homemaker, "but it's the children that are important, and sometimes I just look the other way on the housework."

But that housework can present quite a challenge, to put it delicately, especially if there are many children and a mother who has been sick for some time before the summons to the Homemaker.

"It was like playing hopscotch, getting through that living-room to the kitchen," one Homemaker recalls, "you can't keep another woman's house the way you would your own, but sometimes you are faced with a dirty stove, a dirty sink, a dirty floor, and they've saved all this up because they knew you were coming."

Not a Nurse, Not a Servant. The problem of exploitation does indeed arise occasionally. Chiefly it concerns medical care. A Homemaker is not a practical nurse. To phrase it even more forcefully, she is not allowed by law, even to give a back rub or hand a sick woman her pill. Malpractice laws are rigid on this subject. But aside from that...

"Well, there was one woman who said, 'Would you do a little ironing for me?' and it looked like she had saved all her clean clothes for a year, and I'm not doing last year's ironing for anybody!"

In refusing, the Homemaker was within her rights. The service has recently published a purse-size handbook, "You Are A Homemaker," and if a family asks a woman to do something beyond the limits outlined in this booklet, the Homemaker can show chapter and verse, and politely refuse. "No family has ever imposed on me," one Homemaker said, "I've done lots of things I haven't been asked to do. People have all been so nice to me — and it's funny, because they're all so different, you know. No two families ever do things just the same way."

You Help Me. It was this Homemaker who, quite unknowingly brought a new point of view to one young member of a large family.

"This mother asked me to do a big batch of laundry and let everything else go. Well, I agreed, but I did get the 12-year-old girl to help me, because there were five children in that family and a lot of clothes. So we spent the day with the washer and drier, and the 12-year-old sorted all the clean clothes, because she knew which ones belonged to which child."

"Well, after we were through at 5 o'clock, I went up to the mother's sickroom and told her how much the 12-year-old had helped me, and that mother just couldn't get over it. 'Why, I never could get her to do a thing!' she said."

The Homemaker Service is located at 4 Green Street in the Borough's Engineering Building, WA 4-2366. Families pay the Homemaker's hourly wage (currently $1.25 an hour) plus transportation costs and a small fee to cover liability insurance and social security.

Mrs. Edward Gryzbek is president of the Board of Trustees, Mrs. Jerome Lawson, vice-president, Thomas Foody, treasurer and Mrs. George Stevens, secretary.

NEW LOCATION APPROVED

For University Building. It looks as if the University's proposed seven-story administration building is nearing its final roosting place on the campus map. Last Thursday night the Borough Zoning Board endorsed the plan, already approved by the Planning Board, which would give the University the go-ahead for the building for the second time in a new location.

Final approval is required from mayor and council, who will also vote for a second time on the University request. If they say "yes," the wandering tower will settle down just 285 feet south of its originally debated but eventually approved site on College Road.

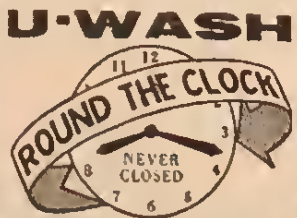

The reason for the University's architectural checkers game with the Borough is the now-expected relocation of the railroad station. After acquiring the land to the south of University's Place, the University intends to build a new major entrance to the campus with a plaza at the foot of the street.

Topics Of The Town

Attorney Henry M. Stratton II, architect Edward Barnes and planning director John P. Moran described the new location for the building as far preferable even if the railroad station move is delayed. They said that, for one thing, its controversial height would now rise from a lower elevation and would therefore be less of a factor in changing Princeton's skyline.

New Parking Lot? The only other case to come before the Zoning board at the meeting was also from the University. But the board reserved its decision on the application to construct a parking lot east of Roper Lane until a nearby undergraduate eating club has a chance to consider the plans.

Attorney A. C. Reeves Hicks, representing The Charter Club, 79 Prospect Avenue, asked for a postponement. He told the board that the club officers had not received notice of the hearing on the parking lot until last Monday.

While Mr. Hicks indicated that the club may not have any objections to the plan, he asked for the delay so that officers of the organization could review it. The zoning board agreed to give the club until July 5 to file a statement on the application and then to give the University a week after that to file an answer to any possible objections, at which time the board will consider any new evidence and make its decision.

Questions from board members on the proposed 156-car lot concentrated on the question of whether Roper Lane should remain a two-way thoroughfare as the University proposes. They remarked that the street, which leads down to the stadium from Prospect Avenue, is narrow at its upper end.

Could Be Wide Enough. University representatives said that the street is of normal width and that the removal of trees now dividing the roadway would make it perfectly suitable for two-way traffic. The land adjacent to it, they added, is owned either by the University or the eating clubs, and they expect Roper Lane to be primarily an intra-campus road with little traffic.

To provide room for the 156-car lot, Fitzpatrick Field House will be razed, according to the University's plans. The lot will satisfy future parking needs in the southwest quadrant of the campus.

It was also revealed that the University has long-range plans for construction of physics and astro-physics buildings in the area along Ivy Lane, which would be sufficient to handle the automobile traffic created by the erection of the buildings.

YOUR CARPET QUESTIONS

What is the best method of installing carpets?

Having laid carpet for quite a few years, in my opinion, the best and only good way to install carpet is tack-less. It leaves no puckers around the walls as tacks do. It eliminates the possibility of carpet pulling away from the wall when cleaned and makes everyday cleaning much easier, as there are no small pockets for dirt to collect in.

PRINCETON WINNERS OF AMERICAN CYANAMID AWARDS: John Grover (center) and Charles Kaufman (right) tour the Cyanamid Agricultural Center after being awarded vocational agricultural prizes by the company. A $100 bond was presented to Grover, one for $25 to Kaufman upon their graduation from Princeton High School last month. The awards were based on "excellence of academic achievement" which indicated "that they are most likely to contribute to the development of agricultural progress and research." Here, Mel Firman, assistant to the manager of Cyanamid's research and development, explains the results of a test with experimental chickens. This September Grover will enter Rutgers, and Kaufman will study veterinary medicine at Kansas. (Larson Photo)

HEATHCOTE HOUSES OPEN

On Raymond Road, Heathcote at Princeton, a new development on Raymond Road near U.S. 1, opened officially last weekend. Three models, a ranch, split-level and Colonial, have up to five bedrooms, and prices start at $24,990.

The 62-foot ranch, called the "Princeton," is designed to expand from a basic three-bedroom house with two baths to a large second floor to provide two bedrooms and bath, study rooms or a playroom.

The master bedroom is 14 feet by 12 feet, and the ranch includes a paneled recreation room with brick wall and sliding glass doors to an outdoor patio area.

The "Heathcote" is the Colonial model and has four bedrooms. The split-level model is called the "Carnegie," and includes five bedrooms, and a portico-sun deck with columns.

The houses are built on 3/4-acre lots with trees, with all city utilities included and paid for. Financing can be arranged with ten percent down over a 30-year period, and some 5 1/2 percent mortgages are available. The builders, Heathcote at Princeton, have 36 years' experience in the business.

In National Contest. The Princeton Public Library has been chosen as one of seven American libraries to be awarded top honors in the 18th John Cotton Dana Publicity Awards contest. The contest is sponsored annually by the Wilson Library Bulletin and the American Library Association's public relations section.

The competition is based upon scrapbooks containing samples of publicity materials and programs carried out during the preceding year. Princeton won first place among libraries serving a population of up to 25,000.

A citation will be presented to the library at the American Library Association Conference in Chicago this summer. The citation lauds the library for "an outstanding year-round program, which responded to and extended the broad cultural patterns of the community."

SPORTS In Princeton

SEEDED PLAYERS WIN

In YMCA Junior Tennis. Top-seeded players Lissy Stevenson and George Fitch were crowned last week as champions of the first of nine YMCA Summer tennis tournaments.

In the finals for girls 13 and under, Lissy triumphed over Laura Peterson, 6-2, 6-0. George Fitch defeated David Russinoff, 6-2, 8-6, in the boys 15 and under matches. Trophies were awarded to the champions and runners-up by Walter Fullam of the YMCA Youth Committee.

The second tournament, junior men's and junior women's, is in progress and will end Friday. Entries are now being accepted for the women's singles which will start on Monday.

Entries for this tournament will close on Friday. They must be submitted to the YMCA office on Avalon Place.

TWO QUALIFY FOR OPEN

In State Golf, Frank Petito and Al Niederlitz of Springdale earned places in the State Open Golf Tournament last week by qualifying at Forsgate. The Tournament will be held at Braidburn July 11 to 13.

Petito was almost as hot as the sizzling weather, shooting a pair of 37s for a three-over par 74. He was only four strokes back of the day's medalist and five below the cut-off score of 79.

Niederlitz, assistant pro at Springdale, had a 39-40-79 to earn a berth in the Open. A 41-39-80 just kept Maury Mather from qualifying.

RCA TIES FOR LEAD In Business Softball. RCA won and Electro-Mechanical Research lost last week in the Business Softball League to force a tie between the two for first place. Both have won six and lost three.

RCA gained the tie by trouncing cellar-dwelling Princeton Hospital, 19-6. Wally Reichert connected for a pair of homers and Jim Clark added another for RCA. The losers matched this with three efficient clouts of their own off the bats of Don Conger, Ed Spleer and Ed Reddick. RCA's Ed Lopatin collected four hits in five times at bat as pitcher Art Hahn picked up the win.

Tied 5-5 going into the last inning, ETS pulled the string on EMR by scoring four runs on singles by Steve Seibetta, Fred Fritzky and Al Meyers and Joe Patnick's homer. It was Patnick's third hit of the game.

Seibetta had a perfect four-for-four performance at the plate to make things easy for winning pitcher Jack Dilworth. Paul Crea had two hits for the losers. The final was 9-5.

In what could be termed a mild upset, Accelerator edged Columbian Carbon, 4-3. Jack Barlow, the winning pitcher, was aided by Lee Leach's three hits.

Except for its 48-mile northern border, New Jersey's boundaries are made up entirely of natural waterways. New Jersey's deep water shipping facilities on its eastern border are part of the world's largest seaport, in terms of tonnage, and on the western side are part of the nation's largest foreign trade port.

New Jersey's share of the Port of New York includes the west bank of the Hudson River, the Upper Bay, the Lower Bay, the Kill Van Kull, and the Arthur Kill. The deep water ports of northern New Jersey are Port Newark, Port Elizabeth, Kearny, Jersey City, Hoboken-Weehawken, Edgewater, Bayonne, and Port Raritan.

The Delaware River Port district, the second largest in the nation, includes Camden, Gloucester, Paulsboro and Trenton.

These ports have incorporated the most modern equipment, and offer shippers an unparalleled location in the center of the world's richest market. As modern communications continue to make the world smaller, and foreign lands become next-door neighbors, New Jersey's importance as a center of world traffic will continue to grow.

Dave Allerdice Is Dead—But His Records Live On

Dave Allerdice, whose name appears in the Princeton football record book more times than any other save that of Dick Kazmaier, died last week in Washington of a heart attack. A lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, he was only 44 years old.

Allerdice, who played his football here from 1938 through 1940, holds several records that Kazmaier did not touch. They were compiled in an era of two-way football, with the solidly-built quarterback doubling as a line-backer when the teams that Ted Wieman coached went on defense.

Allerdice began his career as a halfback, but the Tigers were short of both good blocking and sound field generalship. Before his sophomore year was half over, he had filled the bill by switching to quarterback, and the Tigers' ability to move the ball prospered under his guidance.

Although Orange and Black football fortunes were only close to the top during one year (1939) of his three varsity seasons, Princeton reached what was then a high mark in its rivalry with Yale by trimming the Elis three times in a row. In '39, Cornell was the only team to defeat Princeton.

The most outstanding exhibition of aerial artistry Allerdice gave was at Pennsylvania's Franklin Field on a chill, gray October afternoon in 1940. He completed 24 of 36 passes for 351 yards that day, and all three totals remain in first place in the Princeton record book. The Tigers lost to a powerful Quaker eleven, 46 to 28, but the performance he gave—with Bob Peters and Bobby Jackson as his principal targets—remains etched in many a fan's memory today.

Allerdice and Kazmaier are tied today in pass completions for one season (77) and in touchdown passes thrown in one game (three), a mark several other Tigers also share. Dave's name tops the record book in his 1,230 yards gained passing in one season and in his career total of 2,492—the latter just 99 yards better than Kaz.

Dave's life knew tragedy early. He was five months short of graduation just after Christmas, 1940, when his family's Indianapolis apartment caught fire at night. His heroic attempts were too late to save his mother and brother, and his father died a few days later. Allerdice himself was severely burned, and carried scars on his hands for the rest of his life.

Parents who wished to enroll their children in the third period are urged to visit the Y office as soon as possible.

Included in the day camp program are swimming instruction, arts and crafts, games and Indian lore, and special field trips.

News Of The CHURCHES

TRINITY SENDS LETTER
On Building Program. A letter signed by Hugh D. Wise Jr., warden of Trinity Church, was sent last week to all Trinity parish members, many of whom are concerned about the anticipated expense of carrying out the Vestry's proposals for an expanded Trinity Church.

Mr. Wise informed them that the architects will make further studies with an eye to possible savings, will review their conclusions as to alternatives already considered, including the restoration of the church to its form before the fire, and will seek new solutions for consideration.

"It is a matter of deep concern to the Vestry," the letter stated, "that some people have mistakenly thought that decisions as to the form of reconstruction have already been reached, and, indeed, that they had been reached prior to June 12. This simply is not true."

The letter continued, "From the time of its first meeting to consider reconstruction problems the Vestry has been very much aware of our obligations to the Church as a whole, and our duty to give Christians witness outside our parish."

"When we come to the question of a large capital expenditure for the reconstruction of our own church building this obligation is still with us, though in somewhat different form. The solution to the problem, involving as it does idealism and Christian desires, and at the same time the practical necessities of our own household, is not an easy one."

Mr. Wise added, "... the Vestry still considers the elimination of the present parish indebtedness, like the sum to be sent out of the parish, to be an integral part of whatever program for reconstruction is undertaken." The Vestry has asked for the views of members of the parish on the question and welcomes letters from them.

BUSINESS In Princeton

NEW BUILDING STARTED
To Complete Palmer Square. Symbolized by the traditional grand-breaking Friday, work has started on the new Palmer Square Building, which will occupy the southeast corner of the square and will front on Nassau Street. Demolition work on the cross-hatched Upper Pyne building will begin on Monday, thereby brining to the moment of truth the prophetic motto on its sundial: Vulnerant Omnes, Ultima Necat ("Each hour injures, the last one slays").

According to Fred M. Blaicher, president of Palmer Square Inc., owners of the new building, the five-story, L-shaped structure will bring to a completion the 25-year-old project conceived and financed by Princetonian Edgar Palmer. This final addition to the picturesque Colonial grouping envisioned by Mr. Palmer was delayed until the present because of his death and the intervention of World War II.

The new building, scheduled for completion by August 1964, will have dual automatic elevators and multi-zone air conditioning. Designed by Princeton architect Charles K. Agle in a style to blend easily with the rest of Palmer Square, the structure will employ interior layout of maximum efficiency. An open court will extend along 75 feet on the Nassau Street frontage. The court will be landscaped with trees, shrubbery and a fountain.

First tenant of the new building, occupying the entire Nassau Street section of the ground floor, main floor and second floor, will be the Princeton Bank and Trust Company. The bank will move its main offices from its 66-year location at 12 Nassau as soon as the new structure is completed.

The new building will contain 60,000 square feet, 25 per cent of which will be occupied by the bank. Other firms which have already leased space in the Palmer Square Building are: Laidlaw and Company and Clark, Dodge and Company, investment brokers; Nassau Delicatessen; Walter B. Howe Inc., real estate and insurance; Smith, Stratton & Wise, attorneys; Albridge C. Smith III, attorney; T.D. Vreeland, attorney; J.P. Cleaver Company, management consultants, and William Miller, attorney. Additional office space is expected to be leased prior to completion of construction. The building will be built by the William L. Crow Construction Company of New York, and total value of the project, including the land, is over $2,000,000.

BUILDING FOR SALE
Offered By Water Company. Bids will be opened next Wednesday to see who has bid highest for the Princeton Water Company's office building at 166 Nassau Street.

The Elizabethtown Water Company, owner of the Princeton Water Company, has put the building on the market because it is too large. Only two employees work in the ground floor office space, and Elizabethtown believes that these two can do their work just as efficiently in smaller, rented quarters elsewhere on Nassau Street. There are three private apartments above the water company offices.

The original site was 28 by 190 feet, but the Borough has acquired a 115-foot slice of the land that lies behind the building for its Park Place Parking Lot. The parcel offered for sale is 28 by 75.

According to the Borough tax office, the land has an assessed valuation of $4,100 and the building, $9,100. At the present state of the market this would mean a sale price in the neighborhood of $52,800. The law requires that competitive bids be submitted, and that the state Public Utilities Commission approve the sale. The Princeton Water Company

Free Substitutions Dead

Ivy League plans to experiment with two-platoon football in 1963 have been killed by the NCAA Football Rules Committee.

Rejection of the request for permission to do so was accompanied by a statement from the committee that the same set of regulations should apply to all intercollegiate games. Thomas D. Bolles, director of athletics at Harvard and chairman of the Ivy Group's Administrative Committee, said that the "decision has been accepted and will be complied with fully."

The eight Ivy coaches had asked for a return to two-platoon football within their league this fall as an opportunity to test its beneficial effects on the game. The Ivy athletic directors first agreed, then decided to seek NCAA permission and accordingly drew the anticipated rejection.

FLYING FISH EXCEL

At Tri-State Swim Meet. In the ten events of the Tri-State Diving Meet held Sunday at the Westfield YMCA, four first-places were captured by members of the Princeton YMCA Flying Fish team.

Leslie Bush won the women's open title; Jacqui Linder, the girls' 15-17 group; David Bush, the boys' 11-12 group, and Jill Agadjanian, the girls' 10 and under group. Valerie Stone and Colleen Hector finished third and fifth in the girls 11-12 class.

New Jersey's divers scored 101 points to win the meet, sponsored by the N.J. A.A.U. Diving Committee, for the second straight year. Second-place Pennsylvania compiled 63 points and New York, 37. Representing Pennsylvania, John Andrews, Princeton University diver and YMCA diving coach, captured first place in the men's open event.

has owned the building since 1938. Elizabethtown has not yet chosen a new location for its smaller office.

OIL FIRMS MERGE

Miller and Nassau Join. J.W. Miller's Sons, a part of the business scene on lower Alexander Street since 1928, has merged with Nassau Oil Company on State Road. The merger became effective July 1. Robert C. Miller and his father founded the coal, fuel oil and service business 35 years ago, and have remained in the same location at 230 Alexander ever since. All three J.W. Miller's Sons employees will go with Mr. Miller to Nassau Oil, and he will serve the firm as consultant.

The J.W. Miller's Sons property, with 230 front feet on Alexander Street, has been put on the market. It lies in the Township's service zone.

THORNE PARTNER NAMED

By Mercer Co. Druggists. E. Everett Campbell, co-owner with Paul A. Ashton of The Thorne Pharmacy, has been elected president of the Society of Mercer County Pharmacists. Mr. Campbell took office on June 20 for a one-year term.

Mr. Campbell and Mr. Ashton both participated in a Lederle Pharmacy Management Panel held in Chattanooga, Tenn., as part of the Tennessee Pharmaceutical Association's convention. They reported on the results of a survey of pharmacy customers' buying habits.

VICE-PRESIDENT NAMED

For Roger Williams. Michael F. Marchitto has been named vice-president of Roger Williams Technical & Economic Services, Inc., it has been announced by Roger Williams Jr., chairman of the technical market research firm.

A graduate in chemistry from Seton Hall University, Mr. Marchitto joined the Williams firm in 1953, having been associated previously with Merck & Co. He is a resident of New Brunswick.

VAULT WILL GO HERE: William R. Cosby, president of the Princeton Bank and Trust Company, assists in groundbreaking formalities for the new Palmer Square Building. The bank will occupy 25 per cent of the 60,000 square feet in the $2 million building. Vault will be a bomb-proof repository for cash, securities and business records. George R. Cook III, bank board chairman, on the right, and Palmer Square president Fred M. Blaicher look on.

 nothing in practicality.

The 30-foot living room is graced with a walk-in fireplace at one end and a fetching Franklin stove at the other. You step down to a dining room (17 feet square).

The kitchen is ample and up-to-date. TV room, laundry, powder room.

Four good-sized bedrooms on the second floor—one with fireplace.
